Shakespeare Workshop & Residencies

Kentucky Shakespeare's workshop and residency offerings help students to breathe life into Shakespeare's texts. Our Artist Educator leads students through building a foundation of acting skills, practicing team work, and comprehending Shakespeare. These programs emphasize conflict resolution, interpersonal relationships, and imagination! Whether the focus is on text analysis, having the students on their feet and experiencing the words, diving into scenes or monologues, or even comparing sonnets, these programs are guaranteed to bring active engagement, excitement, and fun to your classroom!

How can we both make this be the most efficient and successful performance?

- We ask that you create an environment conducive to a positive interaction with your students including an open space for our Artist Educators to teach and get the students up on their feet.
- For your use, we have provided these activities for both pre- and post-workshop discussion. They are a fun and an engaging way to enhance learning and allow students to make the most of their arts experience with us.
- It is of utmost importance not only to your students but to our Artist Educators as well that there are adult school staff members present in the room throughout the workshop. Students tend to have less distractions and are more encouraged to participate in the workshop with familiar adult presences in the room.
- We recommend discussing the chosen text including context, characters, and plot prior to the workshop.

Shakespeare's Three Styles of Plays

Tragedy

Shakespearean tragedies follow a similar style and used specific conventions including:

- A hero who seeks to avenge a crime committed against a family member or a personal injustice
- A character who possesses a tragic flaw that leads to their downfall
- An ending that contains a revelation of self-knowledge by the tragic hero about how their own frailty brought on their and others' downfall

Antony and Cleopatra, Coriolanus, Hamlet, Julius Caesar, King Lear, Macbeth, Othello, Romeo & Juliet, Timon of Athens, Titus Andronicus

Comedy

“Comedy” in its Elizabethan usage had a very different meaning from modern comedy. A Shakespearean comedy is one that has a happy ending, usually involving marriage, and a tone and style that is more lighthearted than Shakespeare's other plays. Shakespearean comedies tend to have:

- A struggle of young lovers to overcome difficulty that is often presented by elders
- Separation and unification
- Mistaken identities
- A clever servant
- Heightened tensions, often within a family
- Multiple, intertwining plots
- Frequent use of puns

All's Well That Ends Well, As You Like It, The Comedy of Errors, Cymbeline, Love's Labour's Lost, Measure for Measure, The Merry Wives of Windsor, The Merchant of Venice, A Midsummer Night's Dream, Much Ado About Nothing, Pericles- Prince of Tyre, Taming of the Shrew, The Tempest, Troilus and Cressida, Twelfth Night, Two Gentleman of Verona, Winter's Tale, Two Noble Kinsman

History

Shakespeare's “history” plays are based on the lives of English kings and queens. They brought massive audiences to the theatre. It is important to keep in mind that these plays are based only loosely on historical figures rather than actual events in history and were often commissioned by nobility or even royalty to shed a positive light on their ancestors. The 10 plays that are categorized as histories cover English history from the twelfth to the sixteenth century particularly 1399-1485. The histories usually include elements of both comedy and tragedy.

Dramatic Structure of a Play's Plot

Freytag's Pyramid

Freytag's Pyramid illustrates the five parts of the classic dramatic plot: exposition, rising action, climax, falling action, and resolution. This pattern was suggested by Gustav Freytag in 1863 as means to explain the plot of many works such as Shakespeare's collection.

An example for Macbeth is provided below:

Artist's Questions

Shakespeare used very few stage directions, which are instructions in the script for the actors and director indicating movement, location, effects. An example would be, "Actor crosses downstage right to table." The way that Shakespeare handled stage directions is that he left clues about the characters and scenery in the lines of the play.

Use the Artist's Questions below to explore the possibilities of the text that your class is using for your Shakespeare Workshop/Residency. Based on your discoveries from the Artist's Questions, make decisions about what the characters, relationships, set, scenery, and costumes might be.

Pre- and Post-Visit Activities for Exploration

Please complete the following activities before & after the workshop.

Before the Workshop

1. Familiarize your students with the chosen play/scenes for your Shakespeare Workshop or Residency. Discuss with your class the parts of this play- characters, themes, plot, etc. Also discuss their expectations of acting out particular scenes.

2. Examine the major themes of the Shakespeare play chosen for this workshop. For each theme, have the students list examples from their own lives and from the world around them. Prepare the students to look for these themes in the workshop.

3. Choose a line of dialogue from a character in the play and read them aloud to your class. Have the students interpret the quote, put them into their own words, and draw conclusions about the characters based on this quote.

4. After the performance, your class will have the opportunity to ask the artist from Kentucky Shakespeare a question. Have your students come up with questions they might want to ask the artist about Shakespeare or theatre. Write them down so they won't forget.

After the Workshop

1. Discuss the elements of set, light, sound, and costume design with your class. How would these elements contribute to the storytelling in a production of your play? Have your students represent their own ideas for designs for their adaptation through visual creations such as collage.

2. Write a review of one of your classmates' performances for your school paper or literary magazine. Be sure to incorporate some of the vocabulary in this study guide.

3. Have your students write a personal narrative reflecting on one of the themes previously discussed and how it compares to their own lives. Tell about how you were able to resolve the conflict. What did you learn from this conflict?

4. If Shakespeare were to write a play about your life, then what would it be? A comedy, a tragedy, a romance, a history, or some combination? Explain your choice and try writing the plot outline with Freytag's Pyramid for your life thus far.
